

DO NOT FAIL

—TO GO TO—

BROWNING & BARKLEY'S

If you are needing anything in Underwear.

GENT'S MERINO UNDERWEAR at 25 cents per piece and up. Our stock of seasonable goods is complete in all departments. A beautiful time.

CLOAKS

Everything at bottom prices, at BROWNING & BARKLEY'S, No. 3, East Second street.

HERMANN LANGE,
Watchmaker,
JEWELER AND OPTICIAN.

Invites you to call and examine his magnificent stock of GOLD AND SILVER WATCHES,

Diamonds, Fine Jewelry, Silverware
CLOCKS, GOLD PENS, BRONZES, SPECTACLES, IMPORTED NOVELTIES.

No. 48 Second Street, three doors below Market Street, Mayville, Ky.

THE HARVEST IS PAST.

THE SUMMER ENDED.

But we are glad to announce to the public that the busy trade still survives, and never before were we enabled to offer such extraordinary as we shall the next thirty days; therefore all persons desiring any thing in the Carriage Line will find it to their interest to call on us before purchasing elsewhere.

BARCAINS

MYALL & SHACKLEFORD,

No. 18 5th street, Mayville, Ky.

—THE—

GREAT Slaughter SALE

—OF—

BOOTS and SHOES

BEGINS AT RANSON'S TO-DAY. OUR ENTIRE SUMMER STOCK MUST BE SOLD PRIOR TO RECEIVING FALL GOODS, AND TO ACCOMPLISH THIS, WE WILL OFFER UNPRECEDENTED BARGAINS FOR THIRTY DAYS. CALL EARLY AND SECURE BEST BARGAINS.

F. B. RANSON.

LANE & WORRICK,
Contractors,
ARCHITECTS and BUILDERS.

Plans and specifications furnished on reasonable terms and all work satisfactorily and promptly done. Office on Third street, between Wall and Sutton.

GEO. B. MCLELLAN DEAD

SUDDENLY PASSES AWAY WITH NEURALGIA OF THE HEART.

The Hero of Antietam Crosses Into the Valley of the Shadow of Death—There Will be Short Grief and South—A Short Sketch of His Life.

GEORGE BRINTON MCLELLAN, One of the great military leaders of the American Civil War, died at 2 o'clock of neuralgia of the heart. Gen. Abbott has been officially notified, and has sent Gen. Plum, commanding officer of the National Guard of the state of New Jersey, with a letter of condolence to Mrs. McClellan. Gen. Plum will also consult her as to the funeral, whether it shall be public or private, and on that the government will act. Gen. Abbott will issue a proclamation immediately.

Gen. McClellan has for the past two weeks been suffering occasionally from pains at the heart. He felt in good spirits, and with his wife and daughter visited friends in the neighborhood. Before returning to his home he made an appointment with a gentleman to meet him in the morning at 11 o'clock. On his return to his home he sat heartily and spent the evening in conversation with his wife and daughter, returning at 10 o'clock. At 11 o'clock the pains returned. So severe were they that a messenger was dispatched on horseback to the general's physician.

The physician arrived, and for four hours endeavored to give him relief. His efforts were unsuccessful. At 5:10 a. m. the sufferer sighed, smiled and said: "Thank God I have pulled through. I am now feeling relieved." A moment later he raised himself up on one hand, opened his eyes, looked about the room, and fell back dead. It was not yet settled when the funeral will take place. Gen. March, his father-in-law, will arrange for the details of the funeral.

George Brinton McClellan, an American soldier and engineer, born in Philadelphia, December 3, 1826. He studied at the University of Pennsylvania, and in 1847 entered the military academy at West Point, where he graduated second in his class. He was assigned to duty as brevet second lieutenant in the corps of engineers. He served with distinction during the Mexican war and was successively brevetted as first lieutenant and captain. In 1851-2 he was assistant engineer in the construction of Fort Delaware. In 1852-3 chief engineer in the department of Texas, having in charge the surveys of the coast of that state; in 1854-5 engineer for the exploration and survey of the western division of the proposed Pacific railroad; and in 1854-5 he was on special service in collecting reliable information for the war department. In 1855-6, having been made captain of artillery, he was a member of the military commission to visit the war in the Crimea. He resigned his commission June 16, 1857, to take the post of chief engineer at the Illinois Central railroad, and was chosen vice president in 1858; in 1859 he became president of the same. He was also president of the Louisville and Cincinnati railroad. At the opening of the civil war he was commissioned as major general of Ohio volunteers, and was placed in command of the department of western Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and the western portions of Pennsylvania and Virginia. He was made major general in the regular army May 14, 1861, and commanded in several operations in western Virginia, which resulted in clearing that region of the Confederate forces, for which he received on July 15 the thanks of congress.

On July 22, the day after the Federal defeat at Bull Run, he was summoned to Washington, and was placed in command of the division of the Potomac, and shortly after of the army of the Potomac.

Upon the retirement of Gen. Scott (November 1) he was appointed general-in-chief of the army of the United States. He took the field in March, 1862, and having in two months been made commander of the army, he was ordered to the Army of the Potomac, to see that for the peninsula of Virginia and laid siege to Yorktown, which was abandoned by the Confederates as soon as his batteries were ready to open fire. The Federal Government, under J. E. Johnston, made a stand at Williamsburg (May 9) long enough to enable their trains to get off, and fell back toward Richmond. McClellan, moving slowly, reached the Chickahominy about May 25, and opened the campaign against Richmond, which was the last of the summer. The battle of Malvern hill (July 1), after which he fell back to Harrison's landing, where he entrenched himself. He was then in the meanwhile been made general-in-chief, ordered to move to Fort Mifflin and Yorktown. Gen. Lee simultaneously moved from Richmond to threaten the Potomac, which had been placed in command of the Union forces in northern Virginia. The result was the defeat of Pope at Bull Run, August 30-31.

Pope, at his own request, was relieved from his command of the forces at and about Washington, which was conferred upon McClellan. The Confederates then undertook the invasion of Maryland, which was brought to a halt by the battle of Antietam, September 16, 17. They then crossed the Potomac and fell leisurely back toward the Rappahannock. Great dissatisfaction was felt at the slowness with which McClellan followed them, and on November 1, when he was ordered to make preparations for an attack in force, he was superseded in command by Gen. Burnside. McClellan was directed to proceed to Annapolis, Md., to await orders, and took no further part in the war. The Democratic National convention held at Chicago August 20, 1864, nominated him for the presidency. He received only the twenty-one electoral votes of the states of Delaware, Kentucky and New Jersey, the remaining 223 electoral votes being cast for Abraham Lincoln. Of the popular vote, 2,215,000 in little more than 55 per cent. McClellan. The latter resigned his commission in the army on the day of the election, November 8, 1864, took up his residence in New York and afterward went to Europe. In 1865 he returned near Orange, N. J., and engaged in practice as an architect. By the will of Mr. Edwin A. Stevens he was placed in charge of the "Navajo" floating battery which had for a number of years been in course of construction at Hoboken. He was also made superintendent of the railroad bridge over the Hudson river, near Fort Lee, N. Y., and superintendent of locks and canals in the city of New York, but resigned the latter office in 1875. He was raised from the French Academy of Bayonet Exercises, adapted for the use of the United States army (1870), and written a book on the subject of the "Pacific Railroad Survey" (1874), a volume of the reports of the Engineer Corps, "The Armies of Europe," etc., printed by order of congress (1875), and "Report on the Organization and Campaigns of the Army of the Potomac."

At Half-Mast. NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—When the news of the death of Gen. McClellan was announced, the flags over the government buildings and down town banks and insurance offices, were lowered in respect to his memory. Mr. H. H. Wilson, editor of the "New York Times," was called on by a reporter at the office of the Grand Bell Telephone Company, No. 47 Broadway, of which the said Gen. McClellan was president, and informed of the sad news. Mr. Wilson was very much affected and said that he could hardly believe it. Continuing, he said:

"The general has complained for some time of pains in the heart. About two weeks ago he complained of a dyspeptic attack, which he attributed to excessive smoking, in consequence of which he suddenly stopped the habit. He thought it best to quit smoking, and he decided to take one. I and a telegram from him Tuesday about a business engagement, in which he stated he could not be there for the next four days, showing that he did not think the end so near."

Mr. Wilson said the general had no business anxieties that could in any way hasten his end. The general leaves a widow, son and daughter.

The President. WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The first news of the death of Gen. George B. McClellan was received in Washington by the United Press and telegrams at 2 o'clock a. m. The president, Mr. Grant, and the cabinet were notified. Soon after the receipt of the news the president telegraphed to the general, saying: "I am shocked at the news of your husband's death and wish to know how much of his life effort to console. I must assure you of my sympathy in your great grief, and express to you my own sense of affliction at the loss of so good a friend."

"GROVER CLEVELAND."

Departments in Mourning. WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The president issued the following order: "The death of George B. McClellan, at one time the major general commanding the army of the United States, is a great loss to the country. In respect to the memory of this distinguished soldier and citizen, whose history and life have been a source of inspiration to the people of his country, it is ordered that the departments in this city and the funeral shall have taken place."

SHORT SAYINGS.

Fifty. Pointed Paragraph Prepared for Hasty Penman. A man whose name was ascertained to be Perrier, fell from his chair while taking dictation at the Chicago Central, O. & D., and died without speaking a word.

The Synod of Georgia passed upon Dr. Woodrow, the Presbyterian revolutionist, and disapproved of his views on the lumbia seminary professorship.

Representatives of the Indian tribes engaged in the battle of Gettysburg are visiting the old grounds, and will dedicate the monument recently erected there.

The sixteenth annual meeting of the General Executive Committee of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the M. E. church has convened at Evansville, Ind.

The Grand encampment of the I. O. O. F., of West Virginia, have closed the annual session at Gratton, Daniel Meyer, of Charleston, being elected Grand Chief Patriarch.

Thomas Turner, a day laborer in the employ of John Conway, at Kansas City, Mo., was arrested, charged with the murder of Mrs. Conway and her daughter last week.

A. L. Mellon, of Baltimore, accused of complicity in the alleged conspiracy to murder the late President Lincoln, is now in the whole story as alleged, and the work of a crank.

At a session of liquor manufacturers in Chicago it was decided to revive the Western Export association, which recently went out of existence, and made "Buffalo" its headquarters.

A mass-meeting of miners, with three hundred present, was held at Nelsonville, O., in the Hocking valley, to consider a proposition to demand an advance of ten cents per ton for mining.

Carry, O., has for the past few days been in a high state of excitement over the sudden death of Charles Schuman, supposed to have been caused by an overdose of morphine, prescribed by a physician.

Rev. Stecker, L. Zimmerman, minister who was on trial in the Sullivan, Ind., circuit court for burning a church was acquitted of the charge, and was allowed to return to his home in Sullivan, Ill.

Harry Shafer, the Sixteenth ward Democrat, Cincinnati, who was sent to the workhouse as a vagrant for disorderly conduct in election laws, is out on the streets again, through the connivance and chicanery of the Democratic police.

COLUMBIAN CHATTER.

RADICAL REORGANIZATION IMPENDING IN THE DISTRICT.

The Board of Commissioners and the Federal Office to Receive Attention. Needed Police Improvements—The Hostile Apaches—National.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—It is understood that it is the intention of the president to reorganize the board of district commissioners very soon. Mr. E. M. Bland, of Iowa, who has been on the board for several years, will, it is expected, be asked to resign between now and the 1st of December, or as soon as the annual report is completed. Maj. Leitch, the army engineer commissioner, who was appointed by President Arthur, will be succeeded by another army engineer. There are several members of the engineer corps who are anxious to be detailed for duty in connection with the ill-fated government of the position. The position is light and very pleasant, besides, while occupying the position of engineer member of the district commissioners, the salary is increased to $10,000 per year.

When this reorganization is completed there will be a number of changes in the personnel of the board of district commissioners, and for the positions there are already quite a number of applicants. There have been changes in the personnel of the new administration in connection with the management of district affairs. It is admitted on all sides that the police needs improvement, the police force being less efficient than it should be. There is considerable complaint in a local way of the management of the police force. There are several candidates also for the position of health officer, as well as the positions under that official. The public school board have developed more active interest in the management of their patronage than they have given the board of the schools themselves, and it is quite likely that there will be an entirely new board appointed and some new men brought into the school management.

In regard to the Federal offices here it is expected that the long list of changes will be soon made. The United States Marshal, Mr. Clayton McMichael, of Philadelphia, will probably be the first to go. The positions of recorder of deeds and notary public, it is thought, also will be soon filled. The local democracy, in their organizations individually, have been demanding a change since March last, but the only satisfaction they have received when they went to the White House about the matter is that they were told to content themselves until the president had time to consider district matters. They were told that justice would be done when the matter was reached.

The Hostile Apaches. WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The war department has objected to the removal of the band of Chiricahua Apaches, which Gen. O'Neil belongs, to the Fort Leavenworth military farm. The suggestion was made by the War Department, and the removal of those Indians to a place where they could be held under strict surveillance would gratify the people of Arizona, who fear that the turbulent and lawless element of the Chiricahua tribe are at large upon the San Carlos reservation.

Col. Bredy, of the Thirteenth infantry, has sent the following communication to the war department touching the operations of the troops against the hostile Apaches, under the date of Santa Fe, October 9:

"Gen. Crook reports by telegraph that the hostiles, under the supervision of the Dragoon and Chiricahua mountains, A. T., since last September were driven into Mexico on the 4th inst. by two troops of the Sixth cavalry and two companies of the Sixth infantry. The hostiles were driven into the five troops of the Sixth cavalry under Col. Morrow to occupy a line of the country near the mouth of the Colorado, to miners, China, and to patrol this line daily from the Rio Grande to the Arizona line. The hostiles are daily patrolling the country better than the former posts on the Mexican line, in my opinion, and enable us to get earlier information of their movements and to follow them through this territory. The report of battle Indians near the Datal mountains about the 1st inst. was correct. A party of Navajo hunting in that country were mistaken for Apaches. Major Sumner, Eighth cavalry, reports that he found no fresh trails in the Mogollon mountains. Lieut. Col. Crook on a party of 'Raiders' disguised between Bear creek and the San Juan. It followed them a distance, but they escaped in the mountains. This party has probably committed depredations upon the Indians. Major Sumner will endeavor to capture or break up this party. So far as known there are no fresh trails of the hostiles in New Mexico, though, as they have been driven out of Arizona, it is very probable that they will return to this territory sooner or later. The country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a Navajo Indian, charged with stealing cattle. Shots were exchanged, and the Navajo was wounded. Dispatches report that the difficulty was over. Col. Crook thinks that the country is now quiet, and the hostiles are a collision between a civil officer and a small party of Navajo at Gallup, where the hostiles are daily growing out of an attempt to arrest a

